

The Architecture of Grace

BOOK FOUR · THE FAÇADE Autism-Adapted Edition

VISUAL ANCHOR CHARTS · TEACHER SUPPLEMENT
Grades 9–10 · Early High School

Designed for autistic students with lower support needs
(formerly described as Level 1 / mild-to-moderate)

Twenty-eight printable anchor charts · One per page
Preserving the curriculum's theoretical foundation, with autism-specific scaffolding built into Tier 1 design

Original curriculum: James Anthony Ramsden, Founder

Before You Begin

What changed, what didn't, and why — at the high school level

This supplement is not a new curriculum. It is the same twenty-eight anchor charts from Architecture of Grace · Book Four · The Façade, rebuilt by a multidisciplinary team — autism specialist, school psychologist, school social worker, special education teacher, speech-language pathologist, and occupational therapist — with autistic students with lower support needs in early high school held as the design audience from the first line.

What did NOT change

- Every defined construct — the Curated Self, the Social Battery, the Integrity Anchor, the Perfectionism Weight, the Compassionate Witness, the Backpack, the Forgiveness/Reconciliation distinction, the Boundary of Peace, Calling-In, Grace Culture, the Grace Legacy — appears exactly as the curriculum defines it.
- The theoretical foundation — Brown, Neff, Enright & Fitzgibbons, Worthington, Frankl, Siegel, Steele — is preserved.
- The pedagogy — predictable opening rituals, the Compassionate Witness standard, Disclosure Protocol, counselor co-facilitation on flagged lessons, the PPRA framework — is unchanged.

What is new in this Book

- The Curated Self / Identity Shield charts carry an added autistic-adolescent panel. For autistic students entering high school, the Curated Self is not always a chosen performance — it is often a survival behavior built across years of being told who to be. The chart names this directly and states explicitly that this room is a place where the mask can come down.
- The Pause Practice, Forgiveness/Reconciliation, and Boundary of Peace charts carry a pattern-tracking guardrail. The 'charitable interpretation' framing, taught without this guardrail, can train autistic adolescents to repeatedly override accurate threat detection in peer settings where they are statistically more likely to be bullied, excluded, or disbelieved.
- The Crisis Resources page carries a high-school-specific autism addendum. Grades 9–10 sit inside the peak suicide-risk window for autistic adolescents — the team agreed this must be named on the chart, not buried in a footnote.
- Specialist Notes appear on every chart, with what to watch for, what to honor, and what to never force.
- Literal-language anchors. Each metaphor — Façade, Backpack, Orchard, Internal Critic — is also stated plainly, so an autistic student who processes language literally has a foothold into the lesson.
- Interoception scaffolding on every emotion-related chart. Where do I feel it? precedes What does it mean?
- Scripted sentence frames printed visibly on the chart — reducing in-the-moment language production load during high-stakes discussions.

A NOTE ON GRADES 9–10

Grades 9–10 are among the highest-stakes years of autistic adolescent life. The social architecture of middle school has dissolved, and the social architecture of high school does not yet exist. Masking is at peak intensity. The freshman year often produces autistic burnout in students who looked fine in eighth grade. Suicide risk is elevated. Friendships that were interest-based in elementary school are now status-based, and autistic teens are often the ones shut out. If you are teaching this curriculum to an autistic 9–10 student, assume they are doing more interior work than you can see to simply be in your classroom. Design accordingly.

A NOTE ON LANGUAGE

'Level 1,' 'mild-to-moderate,' 'high-functioning,' and 'lower support needs' all describe the same population. We use lower support needs in this edition, in line with current clinical and self-advocate consensus. No student's support needs are static — a student who looks lower-support in homeroom may need moderate-support during a fire drill, a substitute teacher, or the week of standardized testing. Design accordingly.

CONTENTS

All Twenty-Eight Charts

Book 4 · The Façade · Grades 9–10

UNIT 1 THE CURATED SELF · IDENTITY
L1	Beyond the Brand — Mask vs. Mirror Revisited	★ PPRA
L2	The Social Battery	★ PPRA
L3	The Integrity Anchor	PERMANENT
L4	Authenticity in Action — The Authenticity Gradient
L5	The Groupthink Trap
L6	Silencing the Noise — The Internal Coach	PERMANENT
L7	The Identity Shield — Unit Reflection
UNIT 2 RESILIENCE THROUGH SELF-KINDNESS · SELF-COMPASSION
L1	The Perfectionism Weight	★ PPRA
L2	The 'Not Yet' Lens
L3	Sustainable Accountability — Four Steps	★ PPRA
L4	Reclaiming the Narrative — Three Chapters
L5	Self-Care vs. Self-Indulgence
L6	The Compassionate Witness	★ PPRA · CRISIS RESOURCES
L7	The Backpack Audit	★★ HIGHEST RISK
UNIT 3 CONFLICT & CONTEXT · EMPATHY & FORGIVING OTHERS
L1	Conflict as Information
L2	Forgiveness vs. Reconciliation	★ PPRA · PERMANENT
L3	The Boundary of Peace	★ PPRA
L4	Calling In vs. Calling Out
L5	Contextual Empathy	★ PPRA
L6	The Grace Challenge
L7	The Grace Audit — Unit Reflection
UNIT 4 COMMUNITY & LEGACY · FROM GRACE TO GRACE CULTURE
L1	What Is Grace Culture?	PERMANENT
L2	Charitable Interpretation
L3	Bearing Witness
L4	Grace Under Pressure

L5	The Community Grace Audit
L6	The Grace Legacy — The Orchard Frame
L7	The Class Legacy — Year-End	PERMANENT

Beyond the Brand

The Curated Self vs. The Authentic Self · Performance vs. real

★ PPRA
THE CURATED SELF	THE AUTHENTIC SELF
The brand. What I post. What I let people see. The performance.	The real one. What I actually think. What I'm actually carrying. The one no one applauds for.

Sometimes the Curated Self is not a choice — it is a survival skill built across years.

FOR AUTISTIC STUDENTS

Masking — the long practice of performing a more 'normal' version of yourself to survive social spaces — is not the same as ordinary teenage self-curation.

It costs more. It is documented as a contributor to autistic burnout, depression, and elevated suicide risk in adolescence.

This room is a place where the mask can come down.

You can stim. You can look away. You can be quiet. You do not have to perform here.

SPECIALIST NOTE • FOR THE TEACHER

This is the single most important chart in this book. For autistic students entering Grade 9, the Curated Self is often a years-deep survival behavior — built through behavioral interventions that taught compliance, social-skills programs that taught scripts, and peer environments that punished any visible difference. Read the FOR AUTISTIC STUDENTS panel aloud as part of the lesson — do not skip it, do not paraphrase it. Post Day 1. Keep all year. If a student names that they have been masking, treat that disclosure with the same care you would treat any other significant personal share — do not push for elaboration, do not ask the rest of the class to comment, and do not let anyone in the room treat it as a confession that requires explanation.

POST Before class. The single most important Day-One posting in Book 4.

KEEP All year. The chart that names the floor of every conversation in this room.

The Social Battery

What charges it • What drains it • What it costs to ignore

★ PPRA

WHAT CHARGES MY BATTERY	WHAT DRAINS MY BATTERY
Restoring environments One person I trust. A quiet room. My special interest. Movement, with no audience. Headphones.	Performing environments Group projects with strangers. Cafeteria. Pep rallies. Assemblies. Eye contact, sustained. 'Be more social.'

Your battery is data. It is not a character flaw.

HOW EMPTY FEELS — IN MY BODY

Tight chest. Heavy arms. Brain fog. Words won't come. Eye contact feels physically painful. Same shirt for three days. Headphones won't come off. Want to be in your room. Want everyone to stop talking.

This is not laziness. This is empty. Recharge is medicine, not avoidance.

SPECIALIST NOTE • FOR THE TEACHER

Autistic students typically run a smaller battery and deplete faster than their peers — not because they care less, but because more of every interaction is conscious processing. Many have been told their whole lives that needing recovery is rude, antisocial, or 'making excuses.' This chart names the felt body experience of depletion (interoception scaffold) before the language demand. A student who points to 'empty' is doing the work. If a student reports running empty by mid-October, that is a clinical signal — coordinate with the counselor about whether the masking load at school is producing an early autistic burnout trajectory. Do not 'push through' as a strategy. Reduce demand.

POST Before class. Keep alongside the Mask vs. Mirror chart.

KEEP All of Unit 1. Reference whenever battery language surfaces.